

Taxes Aren't

Socialistic — Their

Application Can Be

Mr. Martin, Republican leader of the House of Representatives, said in Washington yesterday that the annual report of the president's Council of Economic Advisers is a "blueprint for socialism" worked out "in the name of the national crisis."

The "touchstone" of the blueprint is increased taxation. Mr. Martin continued; and it may run to 50 per cent of the people's earnings. "Already the average American is paying more than 25 per cent of his income to federal, state and local governments in the form of taxation," the Massachusetts Republican said.

And yet, taxation alone does not constitute state socialism. In time of national emergency we expect to pay heavier taxes so the country's armed forces may be made impregnable. Socialism appears, not in the taxes themselves, but in the manner of their application—and their diversion to pet projects of social "reformers."

Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, Louis Brownell, an "idealist" man who succeeded to the post when his conservative predecessor quit because he felt the council was trying to change America rather than better it.

Keyserling will bear watching, as will others in high office who can't resist the temptation of huge federal funds to misconstrue their duty as monkeying with the nation's economic machinery instead of concentrating on national defense.

The mark of the politician is on much that the federal government undertakes in "crisis" years. Taxes aren't levied openly and across the board. Rather, they are acclaimed as levies against the big and powerful, letting the little feel low off lightly. That's the welcome word — but experience shows it isn't true. Most that we buy is manufactured by the big fellows; therefore we not only pay all their taxes but a profit margin on taxes, too — so that the politicians' solicitude for the great masses of us is absurd, we having paid out far more in a higher cost of living than we would have paid in taxes honestly and directly levied.

For the war America will pay what is required. But the administration of war funds — especially for projects claimed to be "indirectly" connected with the war effort—will be closely scrutinized.

U. S. Seeking Showdown on Lend-Lease

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—Fed up with four years of futile talk, American officials readied a showdown demand today for final settlement of Russia's $11,000,000,000 lend-lease account.

Russian and American negotiators were scheduled to resume conferences at the state department. The first such session was held April 30, 1947. So far the only progress toward settlement of U.S. claims is the return by Russia of 28 small naval craft and one ice breaker. Nothing has been done about winding up the financial account.

Officials preparing for the meeting said they had decided to discard diplomatic soft talk in favor of blunt, plain speaking—to tell the Russians that the time has come to quit stalling and agree on terms.

If the Soviets will not do this, the American government may denounce the Russian government for bad faith in negotiations.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyshevsk was named to head the Russian group across the conference table from an American panel headed by John C. Wiley, former ambassador to Iran.

The primary demand of the United States, authorities said, is that Russia pay "a reasonable price" for goods received under lend-lease—such as motor vehicles—which were not used up in the war against Hitler and therefore had a peace-time value to the Soviet Union.

Russia's total lend-lease assistance was $10,800,000,000. Of this less than one-half had a peace time value. If the United States government is willing to settle at a fraction of a dollar—estimated at about 25 per cent average for other settlements—Russia's actual bill may be around $1,000,000,000 more or less.

However, state department officials have thus far refused to give any public indication of what they are asking although the Russians were fully informed at previous meetings.

Relatives of Two Local Families on Casualty Lists

Latest casualty reports released by the Department of Defense contained the names of several Arkansans.

Listed as missing in action was Pfc. Frederick Nagra Muldrow, brother of Miss Laura Muldrow of Prescott.

Pfc. William H. Scott, grandson of the Porters of Hope, was listed as missing in action.

Polio Drive Seeks 5,000 of Hempstead

Three devastating years of the worst polio epidemic in history have wiped out the patient care fund of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and left unpaid bills of $5,000,000.

So the 1951 March of Dimes, which opens today, must raise $50,000,000 nationally, and $5,000 in Hempstead county.

This sum is essential to enable the foundation and its local chapters to provide financial aid, equipment and skilled workers for the thousands of children and adults who will be victims this year, and for those needing care from earlier years. Also, the foundation must continue to pay for research in the treatment and prevention of polio, and the training of professional personnel.

"Let us meet this financial crisis, and give freely to conquer this vicious polio enemy," Hempstead County March of Dimes Campaign Director Eddie Holland urged today.

Commercial Construction Is Banned

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—The government today banned the construction of new stores, restaurants, office and other commercial buildings until Feb. 15.

Thereafter, each private new commercial structure must be specifically authorized by the national production authority.

NPA issued the order to save materials for the mobilization program.

Commercial building will be authorized, in general, only if it (1) furthers the defense effort, (2) is essential to public health, welfare or safety, or (3) alleviates or prevents a hardship in a community.

The order applies to new construction "starts" and not to building already under way.

During the initial one-month freeze, NPA said it will grant permission "only in emergency cases."

The types of construction regulated include banks, hotels, office and loft buildings, barber and beauty shops, garages, service stations, laundry and dry cleaning establishments, shoe repair and tailor shops, eating places, printing shops, motels and tourist camps.

Undertain and cemetery buildings, community and neighborhood structures, facilities for the storage, distribution, sale or display of consumer goods, including all retail stores and shopping centers are covered by the order, as well as storage warehouses for personal effects.

In the case of a multiple-use building — such as an apartment house with stores or offices —NPA will require authorization for the portion intended for commercial use.

The order does not restrict the building of wholesale food establishments or wholesale supply facilities for fuel oil, gasoline, coal, or gas distributing systems and pipeline.

It was made effective as of midnight last Saturday.

Stewardess Gives Life for Passengers

Philadelphia, Jan. 15—(AP)—An attractive 24-year-old stewardess—only five months in flying service—died on duty yesterday after rescuing 10 passengers from the flaming wreckage of a National Airlines plane in which seven perished.

Mary Frances Housley, five foot, three inch brunette who went to work for NAL only last August, died a heroine in the fire swept DC-4. The big four-engine plane skidded over a runway, crashed into a ditch and burned in landing at International airport. Four other women and two babies lost their lives.

To the last, Miss Housley, described by fellow employees as "the most pleasant person you ever want to meet," held one of the victims — a four months-old baby — in her arms. She was credited with leading to safety at least 10 of the 19 passengers who escaped with minor injuries.

Survivors of the crash told how the black-eyed hostess from Jacksonville, Fla., opened the cabin door and cautioned them to "take it easy." Then she made repeated rescue trips into the plane until she was swallowed up by the flames.

J. A. LeBlanc, NAL senior agent, one of the witnesses to the accident, said the plane was making an approach in rough weather when it crashed.

Budget Bans 30 Flood Jobs in Arkansas

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—Suspension of more than 30 Arkansas-interest flood control, rivers and harbors projects due to heavy financial demands of the national defense program, was recommended to congress today by President Truman in his annual budget message.

The President proposed, however, that congress appropriate close to $30,000,000 for such projects affecting Arkansas that are deemed essential to the defense program. These include three combination hydro-electric-flood control programs to which the chief executive recommended $62,000,000 for fiscal 1952.

The budget recommendations included proposals for $14,900,000 to Blakeley Mountain reservoir, on the Ouachita, and $200,000 to complete the Narrows reservoir on the Little Missouri.

When advised of the presidential proposals for reductions in civilian budget items because defense program demands will boost federal expenditures to $71,504,000,000, John L. McClellan, Arkansas representative on both the senate appropriations and public works committees, said:

"We can't argue with the breaks given to our state in the budget report. It's fortunate for us that Arkansas has under construction a number of projects considered essential to the national defense program upon which work will be continued."

Surprisingly enough, the President recommended a total of $4,500,000 for the Texarkana reservoir Texas a few miles west of the Arkansas line. A 1941 appropriation of $1,000,000 to this project, one of several impounding dams in the big Red river flood control program, was ordered last fall to be cut to approximately $1,000,000.

Roy Mathias, Shreveport Louisiana secretary of the Red River Valley association expressed disappointment that the budget report did not include a recommendation for levee reclamation work below Denison dam in Texas, southwest Arkansas and Louisiana.

Mathias said the bank-caving situation on the Red river in southwest Arkansas "is very critical" and endangers fertile farm land planned for use in producing crops deemed essential to the defense effort. In a long distance telephone interview with this correspondent.

Crow Would Raise Standards for Chiropractors

Senator F. C. Crow, Hope, said Saturday (Jan. 13) that his bill proposing to raise the standards of the chiropractic profession in Arkansas should be on of the first bills to come before the Senate for a vote.

A chiropractor himself, Senator Crow said the bill was the 30th one to be introduced in the Senate last week, wasn't controversial, and no opposition to it was anticipated.

He described the bill as including the provisions: Raise licensing requirements in Arkansas to require four instead of three years training in a recognized school or college of chiropractic; increase the annual license fees and renewal fees from $7.50 to $25; provide for post-graduate clinics to be set up by the State Board of Chiropractic Examiners with attendance by licensed chiropractors on a voluntary basis; authorize the State Board to revoke the license of chiropractors for unethical advertising, immorality, habitual drunkenness, etc.

Truman Asks $16½ Billion in New Taxes

By CHARLES MOLONY

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—President Truman today sent congress a $71,594,000,000 spending budget for the government next year and said a tax boost of $16,458,000,000 is needed to balance it.

The President told reporters at a budget preview session that he will ask a tax hike of at least that amount — and perhaps as much as $20,000,000,000 — in a special message to congress he hopes to have ready in about three weeks.

He said he would like congress to make all tax increases retroactive to last January 1. But he showed no confidence that would really happen.

In his message to the new congress today, the President said: "This is a budget for our national security in a period of grave danger."

The unprecedented "peacetime" spending program Mr. Truman proposed for the fiscal year starting July 1 — nearly three-fifths of it for military services — figures out to about $471 for every one of the some 152,000,000 men, women and children in the U. S.

And if the President has his way on taxes, just about that same average amount will be collected from citizens although some of it, of course, will be in the form of hidden taxes or indirect costs.

The new congress will have full say-so on whether taxes should be raised and by what amount. But it can block or control part of his spending program, unless it repeals past laws on a big scale.

The President told newsmen that actions by past congresses authorized $30,462,000,000 of the funds to look to the new congress only for the remaining $41,132,000,000.

Mr. Truman's bulky budget message was a more controversial document in some respects than his "state of the union" address last Monday.

He called in it for many of his "fair deal" measures such as the civil rights program, federal medical insurance and a major part of the Brannan farm plan. That seemed certain to arouse ire in some congressional quarters.

Elsewhere also appeared so sure that Mr. Truman anticipated them by laying down a defense of his spending program in advance.

Then he budgeted "major national security programs" at $52,510,000,000 for next year, an increase of $25,468,000,000 over this fiscal year, now half gone.

The "remainder" of his program was price-tagged for $19,084,000,000. He described that as a saving of $1,082,000,000 from this year's costs, even though it contains operations "influenced by the present emergency," for example, coast guard, port security work, and FBI loyalty checks on government workers.

In a statement to newsmen supplementing the big budget document the President listed the "major national security programs" and their costs as follows:

Military services 1951, $20,994,000,000; 1952 $41,421,000,000. International security 1951, 4,726,000,000; atomic energy commission 1951; $8,180,000,000; 1952 $1,277,000,000. Defense production and controls

Search May Have Revealed One Clue

Fort Smith, Jan. 15—(AP)—Possemen searching through rain and snow in northwest Arkansas for the missing Carl Mosser family may have found a clue.

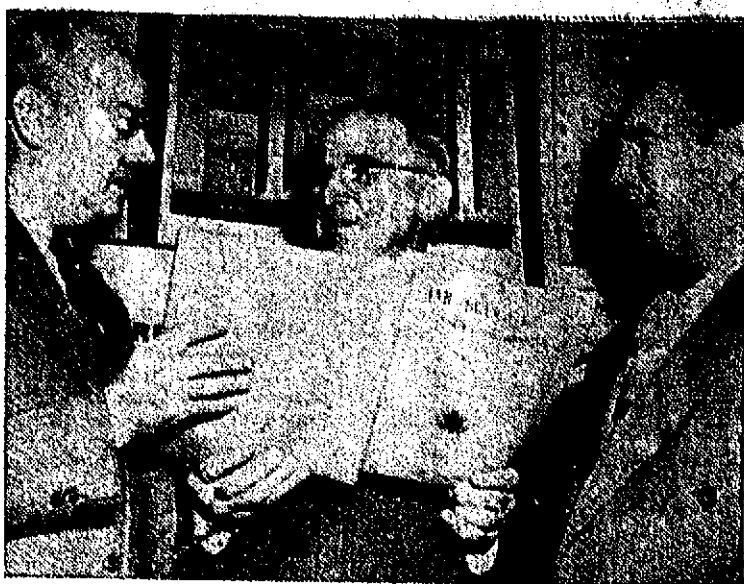

Searchers A. C. Carter, a game warden, and Deputy Sheriff Bud Thomas of Logan county yesterday pulled a torn and stained dress out of James Fork creek about five miles from Hackett in Sebastian county.

The discolored garment apparently once was white with blue stripes. There were stains that might be blood down the front of the dress and the garment was torn badly in the back. Arkansas state police headquarters in Little Rock will analyze the stains.

The dress was small, apparently a child's garment.

Except for this lone discovery, yesterday's hunt along the muddy side roads of the mountainous region produced nothing. Fifteen Arkansas game and fish commission cars and three state police cars, each carrying one to five men, ranged over 10 counties, halting at dawn's set in. The search resumed today.

In Washington county, a posse of 50 volunteers led by Sheriff Bruce Crider, searched the county without results, and Sheriff Crider said he had scheduled for today would be called off. He said that every possible place that the family might be found had been searched.

D. H. Lewis to Speak at C. of C. Dinner

The Annual Banquet of Hope Chamber of Commerce will be held at the Barlow Hotel on January 25, 1951 at 7 o'clock. Tickets may be purchased from Dewey Buber, Ben Owen or at the Chamber of Commerce office. The address is to be given by D. Hodson Lewis. Tickets are $1.50 each.

D. Hodson Lewis, Manager of the Southwestern Division of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, is a veteran of over thirty years' experience in chamber of commerce work. He has made nation-wide contacts through major positions in organizations, and has a wide acquaintance throughout the country.

Mr. Lewis served as secretary of the Chambers of Commerce in Lockport, New York, from 1918 to 1928; in Lakeland, Florida, 1924 to 1928; and in Little Rock, Arkansas, from March 17, 1918 until taking over the Southwestern Division Office of the United States Chamber in Dallas on October 1, 1943. During that period he has been honored by his fellow secretaries by election to all of the offices in Southwestern Commercial Secretaries Association and in the American Chamber of Commerce Executives Association, being president of the National Association in 1938-39. This was the 25th Anniversary year of the Association, which was culminated with the 25th Annual Convention in Chicago at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in October, 1939 — the largest convention ever held by the National Association up to that time.

He has served as a member of the Board of Directors of the National Institute held at Northwestern University each year. He served as chairman of the Curriculum Committee of the 1943 Session, setting up the courses and securing the teachers and directing the general program. Mr. Lewis is the general Treasurer of the Southwestern Chamber of Commerce Institute which at last year's Seventeenth Annual Session held in Dallas in July, attained the highest level of registrations in its history.

Three thousand officers and volunteers searched the rough eastern Oklahoma countryside yesterday without finding any other clues to the Mosser family.

Highway patrol officers said today further organized hunts have been called off.

Officers agreed that finding the five bodies after two weeks would be a "hit and miss" proposition. The highway patrol said here that county officers will continue to cooperate in running down any new leads but no organized hunts will be held.

Soaring Prices Boost Cost of Defense

Washington, Jan. 15—(AP)—The senate small business committee declared that "soaring prices alone" have hiked the defense program cost $3,000,000,000 since last June.

The committee also said in its first annual report, that small companies generally are best by inflation and that the government — as a huge buyer — should be keenly aware of the necessity of taking immediate steps to clamp a lid on spiraling inflation.

Many little firms all over the country are hard-pressed in "the dog-eat-dog" scramble for materials — are measuring their life expectancy in terms of weeks, the committee said.

Some of the small companies actually are losing money on defense contracts, the group added, and some are having to pay "price-cancellation prices" to gray market operators.

It can be safely assumed, the committee declared, that the following list of business "agents" await the expiration of their contracts and the start of new ones.

Three Bodies Found Near Joplin, Mo.

Joplin, Mo., Jan. 15—(AP)—Bodies of three persons were found in a mine shaft here today and police said they were investigating the possibility they were members of the missing Carl Mosser family.

It was not determined immediately whether there were any other bodies in the shaft.

Chief of Police Frank Martin said the bodies had not yet been brought to the surface but that one looked like that of a little girl.

Martin said he was not sure the bodies were those of the Mossers but that he felt relatively sure they were.

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 15—(AP)—The wallet of Carl Mosser, missing with his family of four, was found yesterday near the spot where Mosser's automobile was abandoned nearly two weeks ago Sheriff George Blaine reported today.

The sheriff said the find again focused attention of searchers for the family in this area.

Empty of money but filled with papers and identifications of the Atwood, Ill., farmer, the wallet was picked up by W. L. Lawson of Tulsa just off the roadside about 300 yards from where the car was found.

Mosser had about $200 in cash in small bills when he had his family left Atwood on Dec. 29 for Albuquerque, N. M. The farmer, his wife and three children are believed to have been slain by William E. Cook, 21-year-old Joplin, Mo., desperado who is sought throughout the West.

Officers theorized the Mossers' slayer may have thrown the wallet away after he hit-niked a ride with a Tulsa motorist away from the Mosser car or that it might have been dropped while Mosser's body was being removed from the vehicle.

Three thousand officers and volunteers searched the rough eastern Oklahoma countryside yesterday without finding any other clues to the Mosser family.

Highway patrol officers said today further organized hunts have been called off.

Officers agreed that finding the five bodies after two weeks would be a "hit and miss" proposition. The highway patrol said here that county officers will continue to cooperate in running down any new leads but no organized hunts will be held.

Report Grocer Fired Three Times at His Killer

Jonesboro, Jan. 15—(AP)—William R. Lewis, 61, who was shot to death near Reister Saturday night fired three shots at his assailant before he was killed, according to one of the top co-conspirators in the death.

Lewis' daughter, Mrs. Allene Perry, 41, Center Mo., has confessed to pumping five pistol shots into the body of her father at a home near Reister, state police Sgt. W. H. Patrick said today.

Patrick disclosed today that the husband, W. R. Perry, claimed that after his wife fired one shot, he elderly grocer pulled out a revolver and returned the fire, said Lewis' daughter.

When police arrived at the scene of the shooting, they found Lewis' body lying on the ground, with three bullet wounds.

It can be safely assumed, the committee declared, that the following list of business "agents" await the expiration of their contracts and the start of new ones.

Badman Cook Is Captured in Mexico

Tijuana, Mex., Jan. 15—(UP)—Squint-eyed Bill Cook, mass murderer for whom an international search has been made, has been captured in Mexico, 600 miles south of the border, the Tijuana police reported today.

Juan Morales Kraus, Tijuana chief of police, telephoned his officers here to tell them he and his party of Mexican police and soldiers had captured Cook.

Two prospectors whom Cook kidnapped eight days ago were with him and safe, the police chief said.

Cook was being flown back to Tijuana and was expected to reach here about noon. Mexican police had been using the plane in their search for him.

Morales Kraus did not say whether it had taken a battle to capture Cook. Nor was there any information immediately on how the officers tracked him to his hiding place on the desolate badlands of lower California.

The two prospectors were Forrest Dwyer and Jim Burke of El Centro, Calif. They disappeared Jan. 7 on their way home from a fishing trip to San Felipe, Mex., on the east coast of lower California.

Imperial county Sheriff Robert Ware said he was notified at El Centro by Morales Kraus that Cook was captured at the Mexican town of Santa Orsilia on the east coast of lower California.

Ware told families of the missing prospectors to standby pending further word from the Tijuana police chief.

Apparently Cook had flagged down their car, commandeered it and "flood leaving behind the car he had stolen when he killed Sgt. Salesman Robert Dewey in a previous day in nearby Culiacan, Calif.

It took a manhunt that spanned across the entire nation from Georgia and Minnesota west and south to Mexico to catch the sullen squatty killer.

By the time he was trapped, he had cut a bloody swath from Arkansas to California to Mexico, cold-bloodedly chalking up a possible eight murders.

He was formally charged with the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mosser and their three children of Atwood, Ill., and with kidnapping them in violation of the Lindbergh law.

He also was accused of murdering Dewey, a Seattle salesman, and admitted killing two men whom he did not identify.

The one man crime wave's streak of sentimentality started his downfall. He admitted to a deputy sheriff he kidnapped that he killed the Mosser family and two others, then let the deputy go alive because they had been friends.

The kidnap started a search of the California and Mexican deserts. Planes flew low over the Colorado river delta searching for hidden camp sites and jeeps loaded with heavily armed federal agents bounced over the sandy roads in pursuit.

Mexican police made a house-to-house search — in Mexicali, just across the border. Descriptions of Cook were broadcast hourly in both English and Spanish.

Meanwhile, the tattooed youth was reported seen in such widely scattered spots as Atlanta, Ga., Elowah, Tenn., St. Louis, Mo., Springfield, Minn., Worthington, Minn., Sioux Falls, S. D., Houston, Albuquerque, Vaughn, N. M., Reno.

U. S. to Stay in Korea Says General Collins

Tokyo, Jan. 15—(AP)—J. Lawton Collins said today American forces "will stay and fight" in Korea.

The U. S. army chief of staff told a news conference that that troop replacements will arrive in numbers within three months. Some are going to the front, he said.

One new regular army unit will be organized. Collins said National guard units will be sent to the front.

While Collins was taking look at the Korean war, Allied troops recaptured the Yonju on the east front. Their reentry into the area eased pressure somewhat.

U. S. Second Division, one of the most powerful Red forces, 30 miles north of Yonju.

But the Second Division stood in defense of the work of roads fanning out in heart of South Korea still in grave danger. A Communist force of 30,000 troops reported operating in the mountain area.

Collins promised that the U. S. would stay in Korea following the high-level talks. These brought together MacArthur, Collins, Gen. Vandenberg, U. S. army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Bedell Smith, chief of central intelligence agency, Maj. Gen. Alexander, U. S. army chief of intelligence.

The talks touched off speculation — even that the U. S. might be limited to fight in Korea.

There were even reports that the U. S. might be limited to fight in Korea.

No announcement was made of the high command in the news conference.

"I am not going into the but as of now we intend to stay and fight in Korea."

This modifying reference added to the mystery of what the U. S. intended.

Another puzzling detail was the abrupt switch in command of the second division.

Gen. Clark, U. S. army chief of staff, had named Gen. B. H. Ladd to replace Gen. B. H. Ladd.

Gen. Ladd had been in command of the U. S. army in North Korea since the U. S. army's entry into the Korean peninsula.

Smart Fiancee

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young man about to be married to a very fine girl, but the trouble is that my mother insists on living with us because she does not want to be separated from me, and my future wife is unwilling to have her. She says she could not be happy living with my mother; that my mother is too persistent and bossy and, besides, she wants us to start off alone. My mother is financially independent, so it is not a question of my having to take care of her. Do you think my fiancee is selfish in asking me to put my mother out to live alone, and if she refuses to have my mother in our home should I give her up or give my mother up?

PUZZLED MAN

Answer: I think your fiancee is saving you, your mother and herself a lot of grief by settling the mother-in-law problem before marriage instead of letting it make all three of you miserable after marriage. Not once in a thousand times can a man's wife have his mother live together in peace and harmony, and she has sense enough not to take any chance on the miracle happening to her household. There is no use in saying that both your mother and your prospective wife are good women and that because they both love you and desire your happiness they should love each other. Love for the same man doesn't automatically draw two women together. It fills them with jealousy and causes them to tear to tatters the unfortunate man over whom they fight.

Unfortunate But True

Of course, this should not be the case. It just happens that it is, and you will save yourself a lot of trouble if you do not insist upon your wife and mother living together. Believe me, no man in the world is placed in such a cruel position as the one who sees the two women he loves stabbing each other with mean little speeches, with subtle insults, and who has to arbitrate their quarrels and listen to their complaints against each other.

Family quarrels are ugly thing. They always leave wounds that never heal. Avoid this tragedy by telling your mother that you believe every young couple should start out housekeeping by themselves, but that they will live near her where you can see her every day. In that way you will preserve the peace and your mother will be far happier, because she will have her own home that she can run as she pleases, and she and your wife will become friends, as they would never be if they lived together and were continually on each other's nerves.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have been engaged to a girl for a year now and she expects to marry me soon. She would make a fine wife for any man who wanted her, but I don't know why I have lost interest in her and I've fallen in love with another girl. I need your version of how a girl would feel if she knew I had gotten out of the notion of marrying her. Shouldn't she insist on a hundred per cent of my feelings in the matter and accept nothing less?

MAN IN A TURMOIL

Answer: The only honorable thing for a man to do when he finds out he has fallen out of love with the girl to whom he is engaged is to frankly tell her so and refuse to go on with the marriage, no matter how much she weeps and weeps over being jilted.

Of course, you hate to hurt the girl, but you will not hurt her a millionth part so much by breaking the engagement as you will by marrying her. No woman can be placed in a more mortifying position than that of having forced herself upon a husband who did not want her and who looks upon her with loathing because she has kept him from marrying some woman whom he does want. Any girl with any delicacy of feeling will be eternally grateful to you for saving her from such a fate as marrying a man who is tired of her even before marriage.

Dear Miss Dix: I am married to a man whom I can't understand. We have been married twenty-seven years. He is very handsome, intelligent and entertaining and very affectionate with me. I am afraid that others share his love with me, but not a word or a thing can I find that will prove it. I wonder if he would ever leave me for a younger woman. I am worried.

E. V. S.

Answer: Well, for crying out loud! You are certainly the world's champion trouble-borrower. Here you have a fine husband who has been devoted and faithful to you for twenty-seven years and you are suspecting him without cause. I think you would get no more than your deserts if he left you, not for a younger woman, but for one with more common sense. (Released by the Bell System, Inc.)

Mrs. Stegar Presents Coleridge Program

The Prescott Musical Coleridge was entertained on Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. O. G. Hirst with Mrs. John McGill serving as co-hostess.

A variety of potted plants were placed at vantage points. The dining table held a graceful arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums in a green bowl.

Mrs. J. V. McMahon, president, conducted the business. The club collected was repeated in union.

Mrs. J. C. Stegar presented an interesting program on "American Music and the composer Grieg."

Mrs. H. L. Eaton sang two beautiful songs "Beautiful Dreamer" and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life." She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Stegar. An enlightening sketch of Grieg's life was given by Mrs. Stegar. Mrs. Dudley Gordon played a piano solo "To Spring" and gave a descriptive sketch of the number.

A delectable dessert course was served by the hostesses.

Budget Bans

He revealed plans to arrive in Washington later this week to seek a supplementary budget recommendation for Red river levee reversion work.

Speculation here was that the unexpected high recommendation for Texarkana reservoir was due to the curbing of other Red river projects and the need for speeding the dam's functioning date in the plan to impound water in the upper Red basin during flood seasons.

Typical of the manner in which the budget report calls for slashes in non-defense spending is the reduction recommended by the president in total civil functions expenditures of the army engineers, administering the flood control, rivers and harbors program.

Total funds approved for fiscal 1951 flood control and waterways development, plus other civil functions of the engineer corps, were $983,792,500. This compares with $941,950,000 recommended for 1950.

McClellan reiterated that the authorized $440,000,000 Arkansas river navigation program. About 20 other Arkansas-interest projects under construction and around 15 more which have been authorized, but upon which work has not been started, will just have to wait until we have won this fight for survival against the forces of communism.

Rep. W. F. Norrell, Monticello, member of the house appropriations steering subcommittee, agreed with McClellan that substantial reductions in nondefense spending are "absolutely necessary."

And the President's recommendation for about $10,500,000 in additional tax revenues to establish the defense program on a pay-as-you-go basis found sympathetic response on Capitol Hill, although a number of revenue committee leaders expressed doubt that such a sudden increase in the tax burden could be accomplished within one year.

Rep. Willard D. Mills, Kensett, member of revenue-producing ways and means committee, said he would like to give tax-bonus features of the budget message a complete study before committing proposals for raising the money to carry on the defense program without a deficit.

Arkansas will, of course, participate in numerous other programs involved in the mammoth federal budget.

More than 40 billion dollars will go to the defense effort. And the state, with its military installations and industrial operations, will share substantially in these expenditures.

A complete breakdown on proposed agriculture department expenditures was not available. But Arkansas is expected to receive, including prize support funds paid out to farmers, some $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 in the farm program. This embraces such operations as the soil conservation service, excepting the $27,200,000,000 of the World War II peak.

7. Faced Americans with prospects of the stiffest taxes in history draining more than 27 percent of the national income into the federal chest. The $16,450,000,000 tax hike suggestion, details of which will come later, posed a nearly 30 per cent increase in revenues. Only last year they were jacked up by $8,000,000,000 or so a year to a record high level.

8. Asked a $331,000,000 increase in postal rates — mostly on magazines, newspapers, advertising matter and the like — to trim a threatened $521,000,000 postoffice deficit. Without the rate hike, the budget deficit will go to $16,807,000,000.

9. Claimed "strict economy in non-defense spending" was his policy and it was "incorporated in this budget." He gave an example: "The only major new public works included are those directly necessary to the defense effort."

10. Called on the nation to "work longer and harder" and be prepared for prolonged sacrifices because "the present emergency may be of long duration and we must be prepared for crises in the more distant as well as in the immediate future."

1. Estimated U. S. Military services costs for the year starting July 1 at $41,421,000,000 — 58 per cent of the budget total. That is more than double the $20,427,000,000 the President estimated will actually be spent in the current year. It counted on active armed force strength of nearly 3,500,000 by mid-1952, with "four troops supplied with the best weapons in the world."

2. Proposed a $7,461,000,000 outlay of military and economic aid to friendly foreign countries — compared to $4,738,000,000 this year — to further the cause of "international security." The foreign program would take nearly ten cents of each dollar spent.

3. Assigned $33,112,000,000 or 3 per cent of the total to the multiple other home-front costs of government, a $1,622,000,000 increase over this year. Mr. Truman said in this connection that "the requirements of national security are reflected in every major function of the budget."

4. Included in this total proposed outlays of $1,100,000,000 to help expand production of such basic products as rubber, steel and aluminum. $1,377,000,000 is an extra output of "atomic materials and weapons." $375,000,000 to enhance the price-wage controls Mr. Truman says are indispensable. $24,000,000 for rent control. $20,000,000 for business loans.

5. Tucked in quietly must all the major items which fly the Truman "fair deal" flag — the FEPC plan for equal job rights for Negroes, federal aid to state schools, federal medical insurance with a first-year payroll tax totaling $275,000,000, housing for "low income groups" the main part of the Brannan farm program, the St. Lawrence power-plant project. But Mr. Truman put them all on a "defense needs" footing.

A Congressional conference with 30 members of the House and Senate will meet in Washington on Jan. 16.

Still Hunt For Cook

Los Angeles, Jan. 15 (AP)—"We are still looking for (desperado) William E. Cook."

This was the comment from an FBI agent today following reports that the 24-year-old Missouri ex-convict suspected of slaying eight persons had:

Telephoned the FBI here twice last night.

Was driving east from Los Angeles.

May have stolen a new red and cream-colored sedan with Tennessee license plates at Calexico, on the California-Mexican border.

Sheriff Eugene L. Mueller of nearby San Bernardino county said he had received information that Cook had phoned the FBI, but the FBI declined to confirm Mueller's report.

Headblocks were set up on highways in San Bernardino county, but they were called off after less than three hours, and neither Mueller nor the FBI would say why.

The sheriff's office at El Centro, near Calexico, issued the report of the stolen sedan. And a motorist told authorities he drove a hitchhiker resembling Cook from Winslow, Ariz., to Needles, Calif.

Scores of persons turned out over the weekend to hunt for Cook in the Calexico-Mexicali border area, spurred by a $500 reward posted by families of two missing El Centro prospectors who may have crossed Cook's trail. The pair have been missing more than a week.

Meantime, an extensive search continues in Oklahoma and Arkansas for Carl Mosser, his wife and three children, whose bullet-riddled auto was found near Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 3. Cook is charged with murdering and kidnapping them.

The Arkansas Sheriff's association has offered two rewards of $100 each for finding the family and a $100 bounty on Cook.

A torn and possibly bloodstained cotton dress was pulled from a creek in northwestern Arkansas yesterday and authorities believe it may offer a clue to the missing Mosser family.

ness clinics conducted since the group was organized last June.

"Twice within a decade American small business is searching for its place in an all-out industrial mobilization program," the committee said.

"Too many a small manufacturer caught between the soaring costs of doing business on the one hand and the acute scarcity of essential production materials on the other, it seems as though the lessons learned during the early phases of World War II have been forgotten."

"Nor are these small producers reassured when they see military procurement officers, in their uniformed service and U. S. forest service."

Among other items in which Arkansas will share are a $33,500,000 for the national park service, $300,000 allocation sought for the fish and wildlife service and $4,100,000 fund proposed for the Southwestern Power administration. The latter represents a reduction of more than 50 percent under the 1951 appropriation of $8,620,000.

visibility 1-4 miles. He said that after making a normal landing on the snow-covered runway the plane traveled to the end of the runway and off the end into a ditch.

The pilot, Howell Barwick, and the co-pilot, Edward Zatarian, both of Jacksonville, Fla., emerged uninjured and were whisked away by NAL officials before they could tell their story. Civil aeronautics authorities later interrogated them but nothing was disclosed of the questioning.

It was alternately snowing and raining as the big plane came in for its only landing on a flight from Newark, N. J., to Norfolk, Va. It touched down for the landing at 2:23 p. m. on the 6,000-foot paved runway.

Because clouds covered the airport the plane made an instrument landing, a CAA administration employee on duty in the airport control tower, said. He verified that it was a normal landing but said the plane overran the runway.

As soon as the plane stopped, flames shot up from the severed left wing, and fed by hundreds of gallons of the cabin gasoline, flashed to the cabin. Airport emergency squads were unable to extinguish the fire before the plane was all but destroyed.

None of the 21 passengers and crewmen surviving were seriously injured. Most of them suffered bruises in the 10 foot jump from the cabin to the ground. Others were burned about the hands and face.

Chicago, Jan. 15 (AP)—The entire nation had mild weather today and most of it was fair.

There was rain or snow in the New England states and southward into parts of the Ohio and Tennessee valleys. Rain was falling elsewhere as far south as Georgia.

Michigan, the upper Mississippi valley, western Montana and northern Idaho had snow flurries while Washington had rain or snow.

Michigan State football teams under Coach Clarence (Biggie) Munn have lost only four home games in four seasons while winning 18.
